WASHINGTON, June 9.—William Jennings Bryan formally left his office as Secretary of State today and Robert Lansing, counselor of the State Department, was appointed by President Wilson as Secretary of State ad interim. The change in the cabinet at a critical moment in the nation's history took effect with the dispatch of the note to Germany.

Mr. Bryan resigned rather than sign his name to the note which states in unmistakable and emphatic terms the demands of the United States. Mr. Bryan told his colleagues and friends today as they gathered about him in the office that his resignation was not a matter of principle, but that the President felt as warmly toward him.

Boat Overturns; But Man Goes

School Outing Proves a Big Success.*By Associated Press.

Four girls, getting drenched when their boat overturned, but man goes up to assist otherwise the big school outing proves a big success. Two slight mishaps and what may prove to be one serious accident marred the pleasure of the Connellsville School picnic at Shady Grove Park yesterday afternoon.

While descending the slide about 7 o'clock last evening, Lawrence Small, 13 years old, a student at the Connellsville school, was painfully injured when a splinter of wood about four inches long entered his thigh. It is said that a nail in a board on the slide crashed into him, causing the splinter to penetrate further into his body. He suffered excruciating pain. He was quickly removed to the office of Dr. W. H. Adams, just off the hill from the park, but later taken to the Cottage State Hospital where the splinter was removed by Dr. J. S. McKee.

There was considerable uncertainty as to whether the boy's injuries were so serious. A consultation of a number of physicians was held at the hospital this morning at 10 o'clock. During the afternoon five persons had been taken to the hospital. Four girls, Marie Gehl, Eva Shawman, Francis Schmitz and Margaretta Wagner were being pushed off by the man in charge when the boat went under, largely because the heavy load was seated in the end. They were taken to the hospital and the boat was towed back to the shore.

On another occasion, a stout man rowing himself about the lake capsized his boat and fell into the water. He was taken to the hospital and the boat was towed back to the shore.

An amusing incident was that of a man who was riding on the roller coaster. Instead of falling to the ground, he landed on the roof of the power house, making a climb down to the ground. The man was taken to the hospital and the roller coaster was towed back to the shore.

The picnic as a whole was a big success. The day, which gave promise of rain during the early hours, cleared up and the sun shined brightly. The evening proved a very hot one, and the pavilion was crowded from 7 o'clock until the homecoming. The orchestra furnished music. The crowd was well handled with an abundance of special cars, especially on the road when the crowds were greatest.

WILLIAM J. BRYAN,
SECRETARY OF STATE,
WHO HAS RESIGNED.*MUSICIAN RUNS AWAY*Twelve Year Old Colored Boy On Way to Pittsburgh.

The quest of an old wandering musician that overcame to Connellsville spent the night in city hall. He was only 12 years old, black as coal, and apparently not working much. He carried a tiny tin mandolin, gaily played, but apparently made only for show for try as he would he could not make it play.

The boy said he left his home in Cumberland and came to Connellsville on a caboose. His name, he said, was Daniel Myers, and there were five more at home like him. His father won't work, the boy continued to Mayor Marketta, so he thought he would hike out and go to his cousin's in Pittsburgh. He didn't know how he was going to get from here to Pittsburgh but a colored friend in a poolroom had told him to come back in the morning and he would help him.

"Can you play that thing?" the mayor asked, pointing to the tiny mandolin. For answer the boy ran his thumb over the strings and his fingers where the strings ought to go, but no music came forth. He said he could play it, though.

Young Myers was picked up by a policeman and taken to the city hall. He was released from a freight train. He sought help from some colored people who were going to Pittsburgh. He was taken to the city hall and the policeman was released.

Mayor Marketta Marketta today gave his official sanction to an open-air music meeting to be held by the Suffragists on Friday night. The meeting will be held on the corner of Fifth and Main streets, where the crowd is most likely to interfere with traffic.

Miss Rose Winslow, a well known suffrage leader, will be the speaker. About 20 county suffrage leaders will attend. The address will be made from an automobile.

Women Who Fight. From the town of Bricket, in the Aquitan "Tyrol" numerous requests have been received by the military authorities in France from women begging to be allowed to serve in the ranks as soldiers. It has been explained that such service is impossible.

Woman on Trial; Other Court Notes.*Special to The Courier.

UNIONTOWN, June 9.—Lousie Sabatine, wife of Joe Sabatine, was the first witness called in Judge Van Swearingen's court today in the trial of Joe Eils, alias Justin Eils, who was arraigned Monday for the killing of John Moore, a negro, at Gans Station last December 25. The woman is the wife of the boarding boss, who testified yesterday as the first material witness for the commonwealth.

The woman told, as did her husband yesterday, that John Moore came to her home on Christmas night and asked for something to eat. He got chicken. He threw it on the floor, declaring it was not good, and cursed the woman, demanding a cucumber. The negro left the house and came back a short time later, again demanding cucumber and cursing the Italian. The boarder mistress testified that she, her husband and eight boarders were there. "He came in the front room making flats toward me, and I took him by the arm and led him out."

The Italian later went to the home of James O. Hunter, who lived in the other side of the double house. Moore came into the kitchen of Hunter's house where Joe Eils had gone. The boarder mistress said she and her husband went into the home of the American when they heard Eils cry, "Come now. They are killing me."

The woman said she heard snaps and Eils' face was red when they arrived. Joe Sabatine testified that Moore entered the place and making threats to shoot Eils. She said she was not in the kitchen when the shot was fired. J. R. Foltz, judge of the peace at Dunbar, pleaded guilty before Judge Marketta to the charge of extortion. The charge was preferred against the snare by Rosen Depaula. He claimed that Foltz had overcharged him $22.35, which he refused to pay back. The charges of the snare were for costs in a criminal proceeding before him. Attorney H. S. Depaula represented Depaula in the action before Foltz. He went on the witness stand and testified that on January 19 when a hearing was waived, he asked Foltz to pay back to Depaula $22.35, which was due him. Attorney Depaula said that Foltz told him he would pay Depaula the next morning. Depaula said that would not be satisfactory, as Depaula had agreed to pay him his fee out of this case. Foltz told him he would pay him his fee out of $10 and would pay the remaining amount against the practice of citizens of selling before Foltz. This Depaula testified, he explained to his client.

John Linn of Brownsville, 70 years old, was yesterday found guilty of infidelity preferred by Pearl Young, 25 years of age, but the jury recommended him to the mercy of the court. He was sentenced by Judge Report to pay the costs of prosecution, a fine of six cents and serve 30 days in the county jail.

The testimony revealed that the aged man who tottered to the witness stand with feeble steps, had had illicit relations with Pearl Young of West Chester while returning from the Stroudville race track in 1914. A child was born on Washington's Birthday, February 22, last. The defendant denied the charge.

How Wilhelm was found guilty of leaving a disorderly house, the charge being brought by Constable E. Butler of Connellsville. He was acquitted of aggravated assault and battery and the costs divided between her and the prosecutor, Nelson Bates.

Sacks of Flour for Starving
Nation.*Special to The Courier.

PITTSBURGH, June 9.—The Pittsburgh and Western Pennsylvania Committee for the relief in Belgium had come to $100,000 in eight days this morning. This amount is one-fourth of the sum pledged to purchase 200,000 sacks of flour for the relief of the starving millions in Belgium. Since the campaign has only fairly begun, this return is regarded as a certain indication that the pledge will be made good within a week.

The committee has appealed especially to the workers in the out-side towns to proceed with all possible dispatch in carrying out the plan of the campaign in their respective districts. The excellent showing made at the outset of the campaign by outside communities is regarded by the committee as especially encouraging for the realization of a shipment of provisions for the Belgians in proportion to the population, the outside counties are expected to make a more generous showing than those in the more thickly populated communities. The coupons printed in the daily newspapers throughout Western Pennsylvania have proved to be a source affording prompt returns to the district committees, treasurers and the treasurer of the general committee.

The committee has requested mayors and business and committee chairmen to make daily reports of the progress of their campaigns to the headquarters, 437 Wood St., Pittsburgh.

Among those from this section who attended the meeting yesterday were W. D. McGinnis and T. B. Hyatt, Connellsville; R. J. McGee, Dunbar; E. E. O'Brien, West Newton, and John L. Zimmermann of Greensburg. R. J. McGee discussed the advantages of classified service at the afternoon session.

FEAR TOWN WILL CAVE INMr. Pleasant Burgess Advises Against Sale of Coal Rights.

At a meeting of Mount Pleasant council on Monday night, Burgess John L. Shields protested vigorously against the practice of citizens of selling their coal mining rights under pressure, claiming that the town will eventually fall in, if it keeps up.

Recently the agent of a big coal corporation is said to have visited prominently citizens from this section, buying the coal mining rights and their lots. The sales, it is said, became so numerous that business men have become alarmed. They declare the country surrounding the town is covered with sink holes and that there is no reason to believe that the town would not be similarly endangered if the coal is taken out.

LONDON, June 9.—From Caporetta to the head of the Gulf of Trieste the forces of Italy are consolidating their positions along the river Isonzo and in a week or perhaps sooner the first serious battle along this front should be fought. The clashes up to the present time have been of a preliminary character but now that the Italian not only command the river crossings from the western bank, but at several points have thrown troops to the eastern bank of the Isonzo, a conflict of first rank tactical importance, in the opinion of the British observers, is inevitable.

VENICE BOMBED BY AUSTRIAN AIRSHIPS.

VENICE, via Paris, June 9.—One person was killed and several were wounded by bombs dropped this morning from two Austrian aeroplanes which flew over the city. The property damage was not heavy and no historic buildings suffered. When the hostile aircraft were sighted the residents of the city fled to St. Mark's Square. Apparently they were not concerned about their personal safety, but were chiefly concerned lest damage be done to the famous basilica, the rebuilt campanile and the palace of doges. No bombs fell in this district, however.

ROME, via Paris, June 9.—An Italian dirigible which made an attack on the Austrian port of Fiume yesterday caught fire and was lost. The crew is believed to have been saved and captured by the Austrians.

BASEL, via Paris, June 9.—German troops were encountered by the Italians for the first time at the fighting at Labronne, according to information received here. The result of the fighting is unknown.

FRENCH TAKE LINES

PARIS, June 9.—The French war office this afternoon issued the following statement: "There is nothing to add to the official report of yesterday evening with the exception of some details concerning the situation at the forest of Le Preire. Here we made an advance of 100 yards along a 350-yard front. At the same time we occupied two front and at certain places three lines of German trenches, and took about 50 prisoners."

"On the Dnieper front there was fighting June 6 and 7. Between the Tsimbura river and the Louka river the attacks upon the Russian right were without result. In this fighting the Russians captured 200 prisoners, including six officers and two guns."

"On the left bank of the Dnieper the enemy has increased his forces at Chouzou and they now extend from the forest to the railroad. On the right bank of this river the Germans fell into a trap near Sivka. Two hundred of them were killed in a bayonet charge and several prisoners were taken."

"Attacks by the enemy between Sivka and the Louka have been repelled."

SEES PALESTINE AS WORLD SHRINE

Lord Bryce Describes Holy Land's Appeal to Man.

NO OTHER SPOT SO SACRED

Former British Ambassador Writes to National Geographic Society at Washington Interesting Notes on Little Country That Buiks So Large in the Hearts and Minds of All Men.

The demand for the complete neutralization of the Holy Land and its development as a shrine and museum for mankind leads deep interest to observations recently prepared by Viscount Bryce, former British ambassador to the United States, for the National Geographic Society.

"Though the traveler's handbooks prepare him to find it small, Palestine surprises him by being smaller than he expected," writes Lord Bryce. "Taking it as the region between the Mediterranean on the west and the Jordan and the Dead sea on the east, from the spurs of Lebanon and Hermon on the north to the desert at Beer-sheva on the south, it is only 110 miles long and from fifty to sixty broad—that is to say, it is smaller than New Jersey, whose area is 7,500 square miles."

"Of this region large parts do not really belong to Israel. Israel had, in fact, little more than the hill country, which lay between the Jordan on the east and the maritime plain on the west. King David in the days of his power looked down from the hill cities of Benjamin, just north of Jerusalem, upon Palestine, not more than twenty-five miles off on the one side and looked across the Jordan to Moabite enemies about as far off on the other."

"Small as Conneautville." "Nearly all the events in the history of Israel that are recorded in the Old Testament happened within a territory no bigger than the state of Connecticut, whose area is 4,800 square miles, and into hardly any other country has there been crowded from the days of Abraham till our own time so much history—that is to say, so many events that have been recorded and deserve to be recorded in the annals of mankind."

"Palestine is a country poor in any natural resources. There are practically no minerals, no coal, no iron, no copper, no silver, though recently some oil wells have been discovered in the Jordan valley. Neither are there any large forests, and though the land may have been better wooded in the days of Joshua than it is now, there is little reason to think that the woods were of trees sufficiently large to constitute a source of wealth. A comparatively small area is fit for tillage."

"Such wealth as the country has consists in its pastures, and the expression 'a land flowing in milk and honey' appropriately describes the best it has to offer, for sheep and goats with him? We had not realized that we were hungry and physically exhausted, but after sitting down at an improvised table and sampling that delicious soup and drinking the stimulating coffee we suddenly knew what had been the matter with us. Courage returned."

"Blessings on our neighbor!" cried Ben.

"Yes," I answered. "She's the jolliest caller I ever received. She has taught me how to introduce yourself to new neighbors and with their everlasting gratitude. Whatever happens in this neighborhood I'll stand by Mrs. Estabrook—see if I don't!"—Woman's Home Companion.

A Considerate Girl.

Madge—He said you were very punctual. Marjorie—Why shouldn't he? I never kept him waiting more than half an hour in my life.—Appreciation.

If you cannot get grapes, says a Russian proverb, try an apple.

"From the moment that the traveler steps ashore at Jaffa, where he is shown the fabled rock to which Andromeda was chained when Perseus rescued her from the sea monster, and the rim of the great fish that disgorged the Prophet Jeremiah, until he leaves some Palestine port for home, he is in a wonderful bewildering atmosphere which is steeped in legend and marvel. He wanders in the valley over which the sun and moon stood still at the command of Joshua, and thence every step of his wanderings leads him ever deeper into the maze of remarkable ancient history and tradition, religious association, and an environment of myriad phased mystic lore of centuries of accretion."

GUNPOWDER.

Some in the perforated grains are three inches long.

The bigger the gun the bigger the grain of powder. For the rifles the men carry the grains are half as big as a pinhead. For the largest guns they are three inches long and three-quarters of an inch thick. Every grain is perforated lengthwise. Small grains have a single hole, while the largest sizes have seven.

These holes regulate in a wonderful way the rapidity with which the powder will burn. If you light a scrap of paper all round the edge it will burn toward the center and the burning surface will steadily decrease. If, however, you made a hole in the center of the paper and start the conflagration there the flame will steadily grow, and the most rapid burning will take place just before the fire has reached the outer edge. This is the exact principle which governs the arrangement of the perforations in big gunpowder. The burning starts along the surface exposed by the perforations and spreads always faster as the hole is enlarged, burning fastest at the instant it is consumed.

It is not intended that the charge in big guns shall exhaust its force instantly, says William Atherton Dupuy, writing on "Powder for the World's Gun." The beginning of the explosion starts the projectile on its way. The explosion continues, and as the projectile gains speed the force behind it continues to push. The powder is burning fastest and pushing hardest at the instant the projectile reaches the mouth of the gun. At that instant also it burns out and exhausts itself. Its work is done.—Pearson's Weekly.

A FRIEND IN NEED.

The Pleasure That Came With a Little Act of Kindness.

"I am one of your new neighbors. Mr. Estabrook," said a cheerful voice at our door in the very middle of our first attempt at moving. "No, I can't come in. I just brought you a bit of lunch, knowing you would be too busy to fix any. Please call on me—just next door—if I can be of any help. Goodbye!"

My husband and I glanced at that tray with its two bowls of hot soup and steaming little pot of coffee and then at each other in dumb surprise.

We had just reached that dreadful state in moving when nothing is in place and the things wanted first are underneath the things wanted last—that awful moment when a sense of helplessness, weakness and homesickness combined swoops down upon you.

We had not realized that we were hungry and physically exhausted, but after sitting down at an improvised table and sampling that delicious soup and drinking the stimulating coffee we suddenly knew what had been the matter with us. Courage returned.

"Blessings on our neighbor!" cried Ben.

"Yes," I answered. "She's the jolliest caller I ever received. She has taught me how to introduce yourself to new neighbors and with their everlasting gratitude. Whatever happens in this neighborhood I'll stand by Mrs. Estabrook—see if I don't!"—Woman's Home Companion.

THE DOMINION OF CANADA.

That's the Official Title of England's North American Daughter.

The official title of Canada is the Dominion of Canada. It embraces eleven provinces—viz. Alberta, British Columbia, Manitoba, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, Ontario, Prince Edward Island, Quebec, Saskatchewan, Northwest Territories and Yukon Territory.

The government is federal, centered at Ottawa, the capital of the Dominion, while each of the provinces, like our states, has its local legislature and capital. The head of the federal government is a governor general, appointed by the King of Great Britain and holding office for five years. Each province has a lieutenant governor, appointed by the federal government for a term of five years.

The federal or Dominion parliament consists of a senate, with eighty-seven members, nominated by the governor general and appointed for life by the King, and a house of commons of 221 members, elected by the people of the several provinces for a term of five years, the right of suffrage being subject to a property qualification.

The provincial legislatures are elected by the people of each province. Each province has its own courts of local jurisdiction, and there is a federal supreme court consisting of a chief justice and five associate judges.—Philadelphia Press.

Immortal Animals.

Some of the lower animals are immortal, having neither birth nor death. The condition was never more clearly or scientifically expressed than by S. T. Coleridge in his "Biographia Literaria" in a footnote to chapter IV on Wordsworth's "Lyrical Ballads" where he says:

"There is a sort of immortality among the animals inferior which has not naturally either birth or death, absolute beginning or absolute end, for at a certain period a small point appears on its back, which deepens and lengthens till the creature divides into two, and the same process recommences in each of the halves now become integral."

LOCAL OPTION LAW FAILED IN FAYETTE WHILE IT OPERATED

Reminiscences of Westmoreland Recall Conditions Existing Here.

SPEAKEASIES FLOURISHED THEN

More Drinkers Made During Time the Open Saloon was Under Ban Than in All the Time Under Drink Shops Lured Youth of the Town.

Local Option, an alleged issue at Harrisburg this last winter, is not new to Pennsylvania. It was pretty thoroughly tried out nearly fifty years ago. There are those living in Fayette county who recall its operation, which was an unsatisfactory trial of the law after several years was repealed by common consent. Darwin Mueck, editor of the Greensburg News Record, presents the following interesting and instructive recollections of the working of Local Option in Westmoreland county:

"Forty odd years ago, when the question of Local Option was submitted to the people of Westmoreland county the majority of voters were cast in its favor and licensed hotels were a thing of the past. The contest awakened no interest whatever. It was scarcely mentioned in the newspapers, and the participants were either those interested in the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors or the ultra temperance element. Of over one half of the voters at the township and borough elections voted on the question. We remember voting at that election, but cannot remember of any feeling or discussion of the issue.

"In a very short time after the close of the local option sale of liquor began. The drug stores became the place of those who had thirst. Where soda fountains were in operation, the one in charge would look for a certain wink, which, if given, would bring the answer. There were few if any prosecutions against such offenders. About this time a manufactured elder made its appearance and the small confectioner became the vendor. This connection, it could not be called elder, was a most harmful drink, and, if liberally indulged in, was most injurious to the health. Patent medicines, such as Hostetter's, Little's and Dr. Williams' Vegetable Compound, were sold in large quantities and continued as a beverage. It would bring the answer and for this reason became popular.

"Gradually places started up where liquors were sold, principally whiskey. Little beer was sold at such places, its volume operating against it. Sales were made through the employment of innocent devices, some of which concealed the party selling. The most popular was the 'Wheel of Fortune' in which the purchaser would step up, lay his dime on a receptacle and the money would sink out of sight and a drink of whiskey would appear. Under the name of 'Wheel of Fortune' in which the purchaser would step up, lay his dime on a receptacle and the money would sink out of sight and a drink of whiskey would appear. Under the name of 'Wheel of Fortune' in which the purchaser would step up, lay his dime on a receptacle and the money would sink out of sight and a drink of whiskey would appear.

"Immunity from prosecution rendered the offenders bolder and the purchaser could walk in, buy a drink and leave with no one to molest or make him afraid. This opened up many of the former licensed barrooms, and the friends of Local Option were forced to do something. Prosecution followed, and, on conviction, the offenders were fined fifty dollars, sometimes less. The fine could easily be paid out of the profits of the sale, and as such prosecutions, like Christmas, came but once a year, the tax imposed was less than the license fee under the former law.

"An organization was formed to break up the unlawful traffic and a man named Shaw became the prosecutor in the Quarter Sessions court. At every session, a large number of cases were brought, and convictions usually resulting, the offenders having made no effort at concealment. Many of those convicted went to jail and the sheriff then got fifty cents a day for the maintenance of prisoners, the expenses became oppressive and jurors, especially grand jurors, ignored the charges and even went as far as to put the costs on the prosecutors. This stopped the stream of prosecutions and as about every one was in the business who wished to, conditions were no worse.

"James L. Toner of this county was triumphantly elected to the Assembly on the platform of a new license law and succeeded in carrying the measure through the House and Senate and receiving executive endorsement, became the law. This was followed by the Brooks law, now in force.

"It is from the results enumerated that many men of mature years do not regard Local Option as the remedy for the drink evil. They have seen its operations and cannot be easily persuaded to give it another trial."

"The experience of Fayette county was very similar. There were in Connelville, then a town of about 1,200 population, the local establishment for the sale of liquor recently exceeded in number the licensed barrooms which had gone before. They were entered by devoted passersby, and these appealed strongly to the youth of the town who sought of mystery and adventure. Their utterances beckoned to boys who never would have thought of entering an open barroom and who had never drunk before. The boys were sold to everybody. There was no limit. The Connelville speakings did meet in a few years to make drunkards of the younger generation than all the licensed bars in all the years which followed. Attempts to break up these establishments met with no better success than they did in Westmoreland county. The results were very similar. The cost to the county became such a burden that

Juries refused to indict and convict. The Local Option law became a dead letter and its repeal was hailed with general satisfaction. The experiences of that time convinced most people in Western Pennsylvania that the strict regulation of the liquor traffic by law was the best solution of a perplexing problem.

JESS WILLARD COMING

Champion to Appear Here With the 101 Ranch Wild West Show.

When Jess Willard, the Kansas cowboy, fresh from his victory over Jack Johnson in Havana, met the representatives of Miller Bros. & Arlington, owners of the 101 Ranch Wild West Show, in Kansas City, and signed the nominal agreement by which the new world's champion became the big feature of the show for the current season, he immediately announced that he would make his first appearance daily in the Wild West arena in the role of a cowboy. Several of those present offered to secure him a cowboy outfit.

"Why," he said, "but home I have a whole room full of that stuff, left over from the old days when the boys used to say that I could hold my own with any of them on a bucking broncho or in a roundup of wild cattle."

As a matter of fact it would be difficult for Willard to utilize a borrowed cowboy costume. The new champion is a giant in stature, and his shoulders and chest are in keeping with his height and the phenomenal length of his arms. The "chaps" that would fit the ordinary cowboy's legs would serve as shawls for the champion; his high-heeled, short-camp ranch boots have to be made on a special last, although his feet are not out of proportion to his body, and he requires a buckle much larger than the ordinary rancher utilizes.

Considerable interest has already been aroused by the announcement that Willard is to be with the 101 Ranch Wild West Show when it exhibits in Connelville Tuesday, June 15. Undoubtedly, Willard is very much in the public eye at the present time, and his association with the big frontier exhibition has attracted wide attention. It is not difficult to understand why he should prefer to travel with a wild west exhibition rather than with a vaudeville company or any of the big circuses that were so keen to get him, because, as he puts it, he "wouldn't feel at home in any other kind of a show."

The champion, it is announced, will appear in the arena as a cowboy rider, and later, in ring costume, will illustrate with a sparring partner the famous twenty-sixth round which ended Jack Johnson's career as champion.

There will, it is announced, be the usual exhilarating wild west performances, preceded at 10:30 in the morning by a picturesque street parade.

While the War Has Advanced the Prices We Pay for Rugs 12% to 15%, Our Prices to You Remain Unchanged

THE GREAT WORLD WAR has caused as much, if not greater havoc among the rug and carpet industries than among any others.

Many of this country's greatest rug manufacturers have even been forced to discontinue some of their numbers because of inability to obtain the raw materials. From nations at war come practically all of our yarns and dye stuffs and this supply is now entirely cut off.

But in spite of the increased prices our manufacturers are forced to charge us, we have made no change whatever in our always moderate retail figures.

Our stocks too are in excellent condition and afford a wide range of selection in colors and patterns. The (9x12) size of course is the leader but while fewer in number, those in smaller and larger sizes are just as desirable.

We invite you to inspect our stock at any time, and quote these few prices to give some idea of the many good things to be had here.

$12.50 value (9x12) Tap. Rug, woven pattern, guaranteed colors, $9.95.
$17.50 value (9x12) Tap. Rug, 9-wire, only $15.
